Baronial Missive

Greetings unto the fair and wondrous populace

Once again We were over whelmed by the generosity shown by you the members of this great Barony. The donations presented to St Vincent de Paul were spectacular and the volunteers who received them were so grateful. The Barony received a lovely certificate of appreciation which can be seen later in this issue.
The Whyte Horse Tavern was once again a den of iniquity with much singing and merriment. A certain scandalous pirate was seen lining his own pockets with Aztec gold and We hope that his belly and teeth rot under all that weight. Despite this invasion, much fun was had by all.
We are looking forward to Lord Maidiu's siege engine event in January. It will interest Us to see what creative war mongers there are hiding in the Barony.
We will see the month coming to a close at the Midsummer Feast. We would encourage everyone to pass on their suggestions of cuisine to Lady Bethra and ideas for entertainment to Lady Genevieve. We would also encourage everyone to send along some award recommendations to Us, so that those you feel should be recognised for their efforts can be so.

Yours In Service

Arts & Sciences

Greetings all, I hope you have enjoyed a merry festive season - and maybe even come away with presents that will spur you on to new and exciting arts and sciences projects! Just a reminder that there are three competitions being held at the Midsummer feast: a bardic competition, Best New Garb, and subtletie (presentation method included in the judging). I look forward to seeing you all there.
Remember that you don't need to be able to sing or play an instrument to enter the bardic comp, you could tell a story, joke or riddle, juggle, dance, etc.

The Best New Garb competition is for garb that has never been seen in public before this event. Extra points will be given (in a handicap system) to newcomers, and to people trying a style of garb they have never made before.

Subtleties are something edible made to look like something, such as swans made of marzipan or a chicken on a pig made to look like a knight on horseback, and are presented to the High Table before being exhibited to the rest of the populace.

In service,
Alessandra

≠ Aneala's Mid Summers Madness ≠

Hail and well met to all,

I hope you have enjoyed or otherwise successfully navigated your way through the Christmas and New Years celebrations and associated activities.

Just a short missive to encourage your attendance on the 21st January at the one, the only, the greatest, very possibly and unforgetably, yes is it the eagerly awaited, remember running late, funny costumes, sign this, sit there, watch that, listen to them, eat this, get up, listen to them again, dance, sit down, eat this, oh look at that, mmm cross legs or figure out how to go to the little room in elizabethan, dance, mmm eat that (no, no not the table decorations), have fun, hope the pictures turn out okay, try to remember how that speecy garb was mnade etc etc etc...

- Aneala's Mid Summers Madness -

Now since you must obviously be full up to the gills with seasonal fine food and beverage I will not attempt to sway you with descriptions of the menu, suffice to say you will be grandly fed as much as you can probably comfortably devour in one evening (don't get any funny ideas about testing us we can arrange stockpiles of raw cabbage) and offered a sample sup or two of one of a number of beverages kindly donated for the night.

Apart from good company the evening promises to be very entertaining with a sea rapier duelling by torchlight, a bevy of entertainers who fondest wish is to entertain you right nobly (especially since you will be judging the winner), dancing of all types especially for beginners and the more advanced aficionado of what is probably something very similar to medieval or rennaissance dancing, and a hall full of friends, companions, tolerable strangers, footpads, nere do wells, vagabonds and other interesting people who don't mind chatting and very likely listening as well.

Don't forget if you are crazy enough to think you could run the Barony better, then come along and if chance favours your cause with the unstable crown of Lord or Lady of misrule we will all find out - dont worry the stocks are relatively comfortable if you are wrong - besides you get a good view. For the rest of us come join in the merriment and spirit of misrule and treat the fortunate but short reigned Lord or Lady of misrule with the pretend respect due their pretend station.

So anyway booking are required by the 14th of January, and all I will need from you is a full name, and $5 non refundable deposit for every person who wants to join us on the night in far away and exotic Belmont.

NB Candles - please make sure you have candle lanterns or similar, don't panic if you don't there will be plenty of lanterns on the tables.

For Adults (remember judged by legal age not behaviour), Members may gain admittance for a mere $25 per head and those who don't have a membership in the sea being $27 per head (from the neck down is free). Children of a pages age $10 (memb) and $12 (non-memb) per single entity, children 0 - 7 free (they get in for free we are not giving them away - although now that I come to think of it mmmmm)

Members $25, non-Members $27, youths 8 - 16 $10 and $12, children 0 - 7 free. BYO drinks

Hall opens 6pm Revel, event ends approximately 11.30pm

(organisers will be most grateful to all who hang around and help clean up)

Bookings to: Fiona 0419 966 246

email: fgillesp@bigpond. net .au

Come one come all for without you the populace, feasts are just an empty hall with lotsa food, but with you all there they are grand events to remember for the rest of your days and tell tall stories of to your grandchildren and impressionable newcomers.

In fun and frenchship

Lady Genevieve du Mont FLeur

Designated Tyrant Anealan Midsummer Revel

NB

The cloved lemon (or other fruit of choice) is an sca convention which is a sort of pseudo medieval ice-breaker, loosely based on truth.

e.g.person A thinks well (to some degree) of person B, so A presents B with a cloved thingy, B must remove a clove with their teeth (medievally they would probably have chewed the clove to gain that ring of confidence) and B may if they wish choose to offer their hand, their cheek, or their lips to be kissed. Alternatively B may thank A for their kind gesture and retreat glowing pinkly in embarrassment, it is suggested if the two parties of the first part being socially unencumbered and if B thinks A is rather dishy then B should approach A later with a counter offer or other expression of gratitude.

On the other hand you could just keep the cloved lemon for cooking.... hehehe...

An archery and siege engine tournament for your enjoyment.
An IKAC competition with a few novelty shoots will be held in the morning. In the afternoon we will have a siege engine competition for distance and accuracy. Because of the limited amount of space, there are some restrictions on the engines.

1. The whole engine – chassis and throwing arm(s), cocked or uncocked – has to fit into a one metre cube.
2. The siege engine may be of any period torsion or gravity powered rock throwing design.
3. It has to pass the 10 foot rule for appearance for period design and materials.
4. A standard type of ammunition will be used – a standard cricket ball – something that is easy to find in case people want to test their engines beforehand.

Please bring a pot luck dish for lunch.
