Baronial Missive

Having returned victorious from our recent foray into the southern reaches of these lands, we rejoice that the fair west coast of Lochac is for the present free of the scourge of piracy. Duty and honour called us to this fray, for we think foul scorn that pirates or any other such disloyal knaves should dare to breach the realms of their Gracious Majesties. Truly, Aneala holds steadfast in her allegiance to the Crown.

We acknowledge those to whom our thanks are owed for aiding us in fulfilling the Royal Command, in particular our most worthy Champions of Bow and of Rapier, Baroness Catherine de Arc and Lord Prospero ab Aqua, and all who took up arms in Aneala's defence. It likewise pleased us greatly that so many of our populace travelled so far to support His Excellency's troops, and create a strong Anealan presence in the Shire lands.

Once more our canton of Abertridwr has provided evidence of it's wealth of talent; Rhys fforestwr debuted as an autocrat with a most enjoyable Arobryn feast and Mistress Evelynne did produce an amazing subtlety, known to some as "Booklava". At this feast many who had taken quests over the last year did recount their efforts. Outstanding amongst these was Andre de Montsegur who fought upwards of 30 knights all across Lochac! Also announced that night was the opportunity to take part in the Quest to reconquer Mt Perilous. Any interested should see out Lords Andre, Benedick or Baron Lachlahn.

We now cast our eyes forward to upcoming events. The end of November sees the Toys for Tots Tourney, an opportunity for us to give generously to the wider community, as well as to enjoy a fine day of tournament combat. December opens with Bal d'Aneala, for which preparations are proceeding apace, with musicians and dancers attending regular practices at Tuesday night Arts and Sciences. We look forward with great pleasure to seeing the talents of our dancers, musicians and entertainers shine forth at this magnificent event. Closely following Bal is the Whyte Horse Tavern, at which we anticipate much merriment and a chance to unwind for the closing of the year.

And finally, but of no small importance, we call upon all our populace to make known to us such gentles as have strengthened our fair Barony by their deeds and by their words. For we would have all know how well and highly we esteem those who have the courage to be loyal.

Hat Workshop

On Sunday 10 December we will be making Tudor Flat Caps like the one I wore to the Baronial Investiture. These caps were the fashion accessory of the Tudor period and were worn by noble men and women in many parts of Europe. They are almost always black velvet with white feathers and possibly some decoration on the brim.

Our caps will be made from black velveteen and lined with cotton with a wired buckram brim. It should be possible to complete the hat on the day, except for any beading and jewelling and feathers you may want to add. Cost will be $14 per hat which includes all the materials so you don't have to do anything except show up on the day. You must let me know if you want one by the Bal because it will take me a week to order more hat wire.

New Books!!!

The Barony of Aneala is now the proud owner of no less than ten shiny new Compleat Anachronists:

45 Medieval and Renaissance Choral Music

50 Armorial Display

60 Alcoholic Drinks of the Middle Ages

90 Elizabethan Underpinnings for Women

94 Deeds of Arms: medieval Accounts of Challenges, Jousts, and Tournaments

98 The Lord Chateleyn's Men: The Development of an Elizabethan Player's Company

109 The Colorful Cook

108 Fingerloop Braids

120 Making Medieval mead or, Mead Before Digby

126 Good Jakkes of Defense

When I have carefully checked them all and made sure that they are safe, they will be added to the Barony's collection which will be available for perusal at Stitch and Bitch on the second Wednesday of the month or by appointment.

Billeting can be arranged for travellers from our southern shire.

Welcome to a balmy evening of culinary delights, music, dancing and fun for all.

Doors open at 6:30pm and the first remove of pastries and other goodies will be served in the courtyard garden at 7pm. There is lawn but feel free to bring cushions if you wish.

The second remove will be a more formal affair served at table in the hall.

The third remove which will consist of various sweet temptations will be served in a suprise location as I have not decided where it will be.

Between removes will be court, heavenly music, choruses of angelic (and not so angelic) voices and much dancing.

There will also be an open arts ans sciences competition during the evening.

I look forward to seeing you all there.
