Baronial Missive

Baroness Bella and Baron Donnchadh send most enthusiastic greetings to Our beloved populace of Aneala, Dragons Bay and the College of Saint Basil the Great.

Fantastic news from the Autumn Crown Tournament this weekend. Please join with Us in celebrating Lochac's new Heirs, Count Aonghus mac Griogair mhic Raghnaill, and his Consort Contessa Magnifica Ginevra Lucia di Namoraza.

The other wonderful news we have received from the event is that TH Lord Galen Wulfric was honoured with the Wreath of Chivalry for his comportment on the field and was then invited to join the Order of Chivalry!

Sadly we have had no local events since Our last missive. But fear not!
We have kept ourselves busy attending fencing training at Garvey Park, Darlington, Wandi and Spearwood Combined Training. Baron Donnchadh has been doing a little archery practice at Dragons Bay in preparation for the upcoming Team Tournament this month.
Currently we have Team Baroness, Team Baron, Anealan Champions and several other teams we have heard rumours of. We would encourage teams to wear team heraldry or matching colours to add to the ambience, although that is not a requirement for entry.
We are most curious to see if anyone can field a team on their own!
The event has advertised a Potluck Lunch. For those who may not know, this means bring a plate of food to share. We encourage using serving ware that is not visibly modern/plastic. Bonus points for food made from a medieval recipe, although your Baroness would happily accept chocolate brownies!

We are still looking for a new location for Baronial training so if you have any good suggestions please let Us or Our Seneschal, Lord Angelo know. Ideally it would have room for fencing, heavy and archery as well as access to toilets. A room for A&S would be fantastic too.

The Barony is still in need of a new Captain of Archers to take charge of regular archery training once we have a suitable venue. We would urge you all to contemplate taking on this role.

Upcoming Events

3 Marshal Stream Team Tourney (Dragons Bay)
Sunday 15th March. Wandi Community Centre.
The tournament will be with teams of three consisting of an armoured combatant, a fencer and an archer. The winner in each tournament category will receive a prize and the combined team that is the winner will receive a team prize.
Lunch is potluck so please bring a dish to share.

Newcomers Feast (College of St Basil)
Sunday 12th April 5 to 9pm, Mt Hawthorn Main Hall
We are looking forward to meeting all the new College members!

This Means War! Camping Weekend
Friday 1st May to Sunday 3rd May. Gidgegannup.
A relaxed hang out style camping event. Come and hone your skills on the battlefield in preparation for Western Raids or work on some A&S projects in good company.

Western Raids Camping Weekend
Friday 29th of May to Monday 1st of June, Wandi Community Centre.
Long weekend full of martial activities, A&S classes, feasting and fun!

We would encourage you all to send us award recommendations as We do love to formally recognise members of the populace for their contributions to Our society. (Also your Baroness would love more reasons to illuminate more scrolls!)

Tell us who is working on A&S projects, involved in running events, helping people, teaching etc. It is not possible for us to see everything so we rely on you all to dob people in for good stuff!

We look forward to seeing you all at the Team Tournament.

THIS MEANS WAR!

Camping Weekend

Friday 1st May to Sunday 3rd May.

54 Hampstead Hills Dve, Gidgegannup WA.

As the long, dry summer draws to a close in the far-off Mountains of Myth, desperation presses hard upon the ferocious inhabitants of those parts.
This will, inevitably, bring them down with hostile intent upon the eastern reaches of our magnificent Barony, and we all know what this means: WAR!!
Or, at least, a series of Skirmishes and a glorious Hunt (to clean out the smaller vermin).

It is even possible that our easternmost outposts may be overwhelmed, in which case we will need to stage a desperate rearguard action closer in, atop the Escarpment that so protects the heartland of the Barony!!

Thus courageous gentles are invited to load up their beasts of burden and journey out to Gidgegannup, where you can spend a delightful weekend ensuring our populace continue to sleep safe in their beds!
A fabulous opportunity to polish up your skills (not to mention equipment) before the inevitable raiding season truly gets underway...

This is conceived as a very relaxed hang-out type event, with scope for fighting people to fight as much as they wish, and others to hang out and sew, chat, etc. It is not overly structured or planned!

Timetable	Arrivals and setup from 4pm Friday (soup kitchen dinner). Various fun and exciting war and target archery scenarios all weekend (plus meals). Pack up Sunday afternoon, off site by 5pm.
Price	Full event:	$50 adults	$25 5-17yo,	under 5 free
	Saturday only:	$20	$10
	Sunday only:	$10	$5

Fighting While Injured

Lord Angelo Niccolo da Prato

It happens to the best of us, be it a planned surgery, sudden injury, or ongoing chronic condition. There are times when your training as a fighter grinds to a halt, and you need to start again. Here's how to pick yourself back up and return to the field.

Step 1. Check in with your doctor

Be it a GP, a physio, specialist, whomever – don't ignore relevant medical advice. If your knee keeps acting up every time you compass step, there may be an underlying reason. If pain from combat is still there several days to a week later, you may want to visit a GP just to be sure nothing is torn or broken. Ignoring a sprain today might mean months off for a tear later, so listen to your body when something hurts.

For those of us with chronic conditions, you know what is a normal part of your condition, and what is an injury requiring medical attention. Check in with your medical team and yourself for any odd pains after combat that might be a sign of something new. As much as marshals are helpful, we're not medical professionals (usually) so be prepared to advocate for yourself on the field.

Step 2. What you can and can't do

This will differ for every person, and for every condition. No two bodies are like, so just because Sir Goodjoints was back on the field in a month, doesn't mean you will be. Comparing yourself to others doesn't help, so focus on your own body and your needs.

A great place to start is what you can and can't do, within your sport. Maybe you can still swing a sword, but the weight of full armour is too much stress on the joints. Maybe you can do all your rapier footwork, but not a deep lunge. Figure out your new limitations, and you'll have a much clearer picture then of what you can do.
Make that list of cans and cannots, and check it off with your doctor. If they're happy for you to proceed, then you're on the path to the tourney field!

Step 3. Make a plan

So you know your injury, and you know what you can and can't do. Great! Now let's figure out where you want to be. If you goal is to get back to full speed tournaments, think about each stage needed to get there. You'll need to get your footwork steady and consistent. Be able to move your weapon with safe calibration, in sync with your legs. Work on increasing your speed without compromising technique or recovery. If you have a teacher you're working with, or a training team who know your regular abilities, now is a great time to work with them on building a path back to normal.

There are common techniques to sports recovery that will apply to combat recovery too. Try training your injured side more than your other, to build back muscle tone and even out the strength in both arms. Some people benefit from doing the movements without tools first, and then slowly adding resistance bands or weights to footwork drills.

You should also be aware of what is 'sore from workout' and 'sore from injury'. Taking a break every 5 passes or 10 minutes in the early stages can let you assess how you're feeling and avoid overdoing it. It's normal to have off days in recovery, so know when to push through, and when to rest.

Recovering in fighting is not too different from when we all first learnt to Fight - except you still have all that technical knowledge. You know more than you think you do, so now's the time to engage your inner strategist.
Games of turn based combat, or rewinding moves to explore each possibility, can be safe methods to train in slow speed while still engaging your brain and body. You don't have to sit on the sidelines, just find safe ways to train to your current ability.

Step 4. Supportive Stabbing

As much as combat isn't usually a team sport, there would be no game without the support of our friends at arms. Now is the time to check in and work with your support network of fighters. Many of us have been injured before – sometimes multiple times – and can offer support and advice. There are few feelings like helping someone pull off the move they've spent weeks learning, and that applies here too. Fighters, check in on your friends, and offer to spar at their speed and level. We want our friends to be healthy so we can stab them again, and an offer of company goes a long way. Recovery can be long and draining, but it's a little easier knowing you're not alone.

Step 5. Get back in the game

Injuries heal, and flare ups subside. A joint might never be the same as before, but most people get bad knees and backs anyway, so don't let it stop you! Return to combat at your pace, with a journey approved by your medical team and supported by your friends.

As you return, advocate for yourself on and off the field. Let marshals know at training what is safe so they can help watch out for you, or teachers who can pair people of similar speeds to you in drills. If you can't do something safely, then don't do it. But if you have your doctor's approval, and you feel safe, then the mental health boost from a bit of sparring can be a fantastic medicine.

End of the day, we play a combat sport and injuries happen. That's part of our assumption of risk. But all of us decided to pick up a sword for a reason, and few things feel as sweet as returning to the field once more. However your recovery path looks, remember the many fighters who've come before you and made it back. You'll be on the field with them soon.

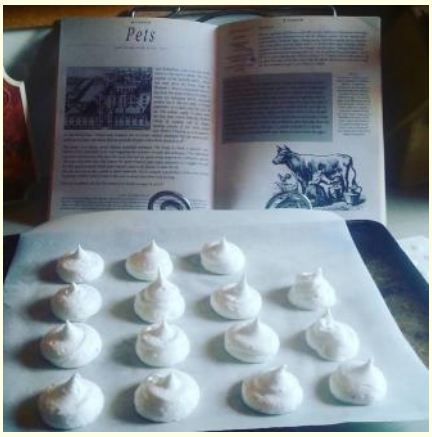
Article by Lady Thomasina Coke

Meringues ready to be baked.
In 1630, a recipe for a baked beaten-egg-white-and-sugar confection is given in a manuscript of collected recipes written, by Lady Rachel Fane (1612/13 – 1680). At that time, Lady Fane was single, eighteen and living in West Kent at Knole, one of the largest private houses in England, and, since 1566, the home of Thomas Sackville, 1st Earl of Dorset, and his descendants who have lived there ever since.
The recipe by Lady Fane appears to be the second earliest recorded recipe of a baked beaten-eggwhite-and-sugar confection. It is reproduced here in the figure below with the kind permission of the Centre for Kentish Studies in Maidstone, Kent, U.K.,

A facsimile reproduction of Lady Fane's recipe for meringue Where it is archived.
An annotated transcription of the recipe follows the figure.



"To make Pets
Take a pownd of Drye fine searsed [sifted] suger, & beat the whites very wel then take off froutgh [froth] & put your suger, bye litle & litle in to it — contineually stirring it & beating it with a spoone ore laydle, and when it is exceedingly well beaten, then have some pye plates ready buttred & wipe the buter of because the lesse buter it hath the beter, then drope them upon the plate & put in to every drope a carieway seede or coriander then let your oven be very temparate and watch them with a candle all the while & if they be right they will rise and looke very white, it is good at the first to set a scilet [skillet] of water, with them in to the oven,& when they be thowrow [thoroughly] drye then take them out, you must in the mixing of them put 12 graines of muske & 12 of Abergrisse [Ambergris] which you must bruse with sugar before you stire it in to the egge & suger."

Redacted recipe

Ingredients
6 egg whites
225 g caster sugar
25 g butter
1 teaspoon lightly crushed coriander seeds
1 teaspoon lightly crushed aniseeds

Method
Beat the egg whites until they are really stiff and then add all but 2 tablespoons of the sugar, a spoonful at a time beating as you go until the meringue is glossy.
Mix the coriander and aniseed with the remaining sugar, crushing it gently, and fold it carefully into the meringue mixture.
Take a couple of baking sheets and lightly butter them or cover with baking paper.
Place a tablespoon of mixture on to the surface or pipe, leaving at least an inch around each one for spreading.
Bake in a low preheated oven, 140 degrees, for 1 to 1 ½ hours.
They're really meant to dry out rather than bake and should remain white throughout.
Allow to cool before lifting off.
They will store in an air tight container for 3-4 days.

Dragons Bay Tag Team Tourney

Sunday 15th March 2026

Setup: 8:30am Start: 10am

Tournaments:

Archery: 10am – 11:30am
Armoured Combat: 1pm-3pm
Rapier: 3pm=5pm

Wandi Community Centre Oval
302 De Haer Rd, Wandi WA 6167

Cost: Free - Non-members will need to pay event insurance
Bookings are not required

Steward: Kilic ibn Sungur

The tournament will be with teams of three consisting of an armoured combatant, a rapier fighter and an archer.

Lunch is potluck and will be from 11:30 am to 1 pm.

Tournament formats:

Archery:

The first round will be with a variation of 15th century Cavalryman target.
The target will be at 25 metres and will be 3 metres tall.
At the top of the target pole will be a small target representing a cavalryman's face and is worth 5 points.

In the middle will be a round target that represents the cavalryman's shield, and it is worth 3 points.

The bottom target represents the horse's body and is worth 1 point.

The second round will consist of 3 triangular Tibetan targets at 15 metres, 20 metres and 25 metres.
Each target is divided into 5 sections, each section narrows as it reaches the top.

The scoring will be as follows at each range (from widest to narrowest):
15 metres – 1,2,3,4,520 metres – 3,4,5,6,725 metres – 5,6,7,8,9

Armoured combat:

The armoured combat tourney will consist of a field in the shape of two castle towers and a curtain wall.

The towers will each be 3 metres in diameter, separated by a 4-metre-long curtain wall.
The curtain wall will be one metre wide and open on one side to represent the inner part of the castle.
If a fighter steps off the wall even with one foot,
they are deemed to have died by falling off the wall.
The format will be a round robin of 3 bouts.

Rapier:

The Rapier tourney will be a tavern barrier tourney.
There will be 4 tables set up inside the tourney field.
The fighters will position themselves on opposite sides of a table and can not be on the same side of the table or on one end and one side.

If at anytime one of the fighters end up at the end of the table,
then the other fighter must move to another table,
and the fight will resume at the next table.
On the table will be various items that can be used as off-hand defensive weapons.
What these will be will be identified on the day.
The tourney will be a round robin of three bouts

Prizes:
The winner in each tournament category will receive a prize for their prowess and the combined team that is the winner will receive a team prize.
